

Human scientificism: Proof and the new paradigm—our faithless faith

It is completely obvious. Everyone can see it, and now, there is no way around the fact: it is too late. The current human paradigm is doomed, a failure from every side, and it is headed down at record speed. Russia is a boiling pot with the lid bolted tight, the middle east is a bomb twice over, the entire world economy, this horrid farce based on our most deadly and primitive of human vices: competition and greed—this base perversion of all of human potential...is doomed. To be as we are, as creatures lower than the lowest animal, for animals do help each other, and never resort to the ugly falsehood of establishing worth in terms of monetary equivalence, is hideous, degraded and poisonous. The linear model which pits each man against the next in competition is so very incorrect and stupid...our history of war and hatred make the point all too clear: it is too late.

We are as the body, where all the organs and cells are connected by a nonlocal biophotonic field and are therefore part of a single system. The kidney does not exploit the liver for gain, and the liver does not dominate the spleen for profit...the system is not broken into subject and object oppositions, it is a coherent system, or, it is evidence of disease. We, modern man, are an autoimmune disease in the body of the universe. It must end...now. That fact leaves a serious problem. I have stated in a great many essays that the difficulty can be traced back to specific points in history and events which were inculcated into the phylogeny, and therefore the ontology, of the species and individual, yielding a state of pathogenic psycho-topology which is repressive, and that, is ill by design, precluding ethical, intellectual and empathetic development in an inefficient structure called sublimation by repression. Instead of the empathy which rightly unites "subject and object" by way of identification in the coherent system, we have competition and a linear zero-sum-gain model which pits the parts of the system against each other to destroy them all. Competition amongst the cooperative parts of a system is destructive and foolish. We are doomed—for a reason.

I have stated many times that the specific piece of psychology to blame, reaction formations, are to be avoided. This statement, although plain and simple, is still far too abstract and unclear for most, who know little of psychology and want to know still less. The basic information, although symbolically distorted, or couched in the falsehood of moral mandate, is available through the teachings of philosophers and religious minds throughout history, but these sources are either laughed at as is the case with spiritual teachings, or said to be unintelligible, as is the case with philosophy, which one must admit is as dubious as any spiritual dogma to the modern mind. Let us be plain, the situation is this way, so we must deal with it. I insist, the answer is equally plain, and can be brought to fruition before the tree perishes. I wish to do that. I have a plan.

We live in a faithless age. That is a good thing in my view. To doubt is a worthy trait akin to science itself. Science is based not on proof, but on doubt, and all science wishes only to disprove...scientific "proof" itself is merely the inability to disprove...pure doubt! Science, this trustworthy neurosis, so deeply and rightly rooted in obsessive doubt, is our "new religion." Our faithless faith. So far, this faithless faith has left us in cold and sterile hands! It need not be so. For reality is quantum at its basis, and that is a nonlinear paradigm, where all pathways are taken often as not all at once, and so, objects and simultaneous identifications abound (see my recent "Oneness" essay), where the mental and physical are interactive via entanglement and nonlocality which create and connect all things (see my "Neuroquantology and the Cartesian dualism" essay and many others), and the wave-function itself, may well be akin to affect, to feeling (see my recent essay "The Affect Information Model of Physical Consciousness"). Here is the answer, the very basis of physics, and I contend, psychology itself: the quantum paradigm! A linear/nonlinear interactive paradigm based on the (empathetic)/entangled dynamism of both physical and mental processes which yield a coherent systemic vision free of subject object distinction. Nonlinear primacy is empathetic primacy. This is the basis of reality, and the model for human advancement: the new human paradigm. We will use the new religion to introduce the new paradigm. We will offer proof rather than require faith. We will show them the nonlinear in a linear way which demonstrates fact holding to this standard: Truth earns trust...trust never precedes that upon which it is based.

I have decided to have the following experiment funded. This will demonstrate in clear simple terms the fact: if we cooperate in thought and feeling, we can change the world. This is the science behind luck, behind the power of prayer, our faithless faith which comes of physics. I need help to do it. If I can get this into a lab...the public will SEE. No guesswork, just look and know: we are supposed to be loving and help each other, in thought and feeling as well as deed, this empathetic paradigm is real, primary, the basis of all physics and we, are part of it. We SHOULD be THIS way, and no other. We should cooperate, and care. That alone will change the probability of a good future. This...is the point. Our higher truth made manifest as experimental physics...no faith needed. Please consider lending a hand and helping me to bring the following into reality. This change is vital to the future of our race. The following could be easily modified to have a group of ordinary people generate the "Temporal Mass" involved via summed mentation.

Introductory Experimental Remarks: Clearly entanglement and nonlocality are deeply basic to our quantum consciousness and are the source of linear manifest reality and interactivity. From the entangled mechanism which binds together DNA itself to the very most basic aspects from which are sourced consciousness and the physical energetic instantiation of matter, all of linear reality is based on a primary nonlinear connectivity, a physics of creation and empathy. We are connected in mind and body to all things as a nonlinear empathetic part of a system which does not distinguish between subject and object...but is coherent and bi-directionally causal as a function of entanglement and nonlocal primacy. I propose that we construct an experiment which directly demonstrates the entangled effect, temporal mass, and its implications in human terms.

1. When undirected by mentation or observation a quantum coherent state collapses in a random pattern, "Quantum collapses are truly random" (Exploring a Quantum-Hebbian Approach Towards Learning and Cognition Priti Gupta and Chota Madan Markan, p. 421, Neuroquantology, 2013, vol 11 issue 3).

2. Mentation affects outcome of random number/event generators. (There are a great many of these studies, Eg., Mind-Matter Interaction at a Distance of 190 km: Effects on a Random Event Generator Using a Cutoff Method Patrizio Tressoldi*, Luciano Pederzoli†, Patrizio Caini†, Alessandro Ferrini†, Simone Melloni†, Diana Richeldi†, Florentina Richeldi†, Gian Marco Dum*). It can be clearly inferred that mentation in some small but demonstrable way, affects probability outcomes. Our minds influence the outcome of events. That is clear...but how? I believe we can all guess, it is a matter of variance in entangled relations, entangled strength between the random event generator and the subject are altered (a mental superposition of wavefunctions is implied by my reasoning...hippocampal dynamism is probably very important by my theories). The mechanism is likely to be variation in entangled strength by (unconscious) "superposed" mentation.

3. It should be possible to create a situation where a superposition, or entanglement of several elements is created, and then, allowed to collapse in whatever way without measurement or observation and still make note of the fact and record the random patterning using this method or a better one known to you:
<http://physics.aps.org/articles/v7/45>

4. Now that we have established a method of creating and substantiating random nonlocal coherent phenomenon and collapse, we get the cooperation of adept participants who have demonstrated their ability to affect these situations in previous experimental work, and have them apply focused mentation to alter the random collapse...a demonstrated direct alteration of entangled phenomenon with the mind. The nexus of nonlinear reality exposed and shown to be as it is.

5. Next, two people sum their efforts, and create even further substantial modification to the random patterning than was achieved by one mental influence alone.

6. This will provide clear proof of two points: a. That feeling and thought affect the physical world via temporal mass, a nonlocal phenomenon which affects entangled strength and evolution. b. That cooperative effort and affect, cooperative collection of will and feeling itself, will bring with unified cooperative thought, the greatest advance in creating new probabilities...in short: if we cooperate as empathetic parts of a whole entangled system, we can create a future. Entanglement, empathy and cooperation, are health, power and our "lucky" future.

This work is the sole property of the author, Rich Norman © 2014 and is used by this forum with both permission and gratitude.